OVATION TO GENERAL LONGSTREET.

Well as General Wade Hampton, Generni Stophen Lee, General Fitzbugh Les, General Gordon and Mrjor John W. Daniel Besponses to Tonata at the Banquet.

CHICAGO, ILL., May 29.—The South sent its most distinguished living repre-sentatives of the "Lost Cause" to Chi-cago to-day to witness the unveiling on to-metrow of the monument in Oakwood Cemetery to the Confederate dead—those who died while prisoners of war at Camp Douglass, in this city.

who died while prisoners of war at Camp Douglass, in this city.

Prominent Chicago civilians and military men welcomed the guests, and saw that their first day was pleasantly spent. Lieutenant-General James Longstreet, accompanied by his daughters, Mrs. Sanders, and Miss Louise Longstreet, preceded the main party, arriving last night. Southerners and citizens of Chicago united to do the venerable Georgia soldier all honor. Later in the day, he divided the honors with General Wade Hampton, who formed one of the party of thirty-five which arrived from Washington at Il A. M.

GENERAL LONGSTREET'S RECUPTION. General Longstreet, who is seventy years of age, was compelled to spend most of the time in his room. From 5 to 7 o'clock the reception was formal, and a large number of Chicaga society folks attended in evening dress. General Longstreet and his charming daughters were the objects of much attention. The general was compelled to receive scated. Over 1,000 people were introduced to and welcomed the city's gyests.

1,000 people were introduced to and welcomed the city's grests.

At 7 o'clock General Fitzhugh Lee and General John B. Gordon, who had been detained in the South, arrived. General Lee Joined the brilliant throng in the Palmer House, but the gentleman from Georgia was too tired from travel. General Longstreet was forced to retire before the end of the function.

WADE HAMPTON'S VIEWS.

General Hampton was enthusiastic on the subject of the monument, saylig: "The dedication of Chicago's Confederate monument to-morrow is by far the great-est event that has ever taken place in this country to cement the North and the Souh. Chicago cannot be too greatly praised for persistency in her noble and generous déed, in spite of the sneers and snubbings administered by Massachusetts. The banquet assemblage at Kinsley's in the evening marked the epoch in the his tory of the United North and South. Vet tory of the United North and South. Ver-crans who fought each other sat together and called one another brother in all sincerity. Spontaneous outbursts of loy-alty on the part of the ex-Confederate officers marked the social occasion, and good-fellowship prevailed with all."

GEN. STEPHEN LEE'S LEMARKS.

Before the regular toast list was called General Stephen D. Lee, of Mississippi, was called upon and said: "Chicago's hospitality knows no sectionalism. No American is a stranger. This great city, the future metropolis of this country, is catholic. This event will be historic. We make no war on the dead, and we, the vanquished, come to the home of bravest victors. We accept the friendship in the same spirit it is offered, Come and conquer us of the South again, but not with bayonets, but with your commercial men."

commercial men."

Mayor Swift extended the freedom of the city to the guests, and told them the hot spell was symbolic of the warmth of Chicago's welcome.

General Wade Hampton introduced a resolution in tegard to the death of Secretics (Cashan and the 20 guests gilently)

General Fitzhugh Lee responded to "Shall the South not grasp it?"

He said: "I am surrounded by the flag of the United States. I had a similar experience about thirty years ago the viliage of Apporantox. I had not slept so well for a long time as I did that night after parole, although my flanks were well covered. To teil the truth, the country is safe."

A hearty greeting was extended to General Hampton when he rose to respond to "Southern Chivalry from 1776 to 1865."

Conrad and Others.

Conred and Others

CHICAGO, ILL., May 23.—Spacial.—It was a billiant assemblage that gathered in the parlors of the Palmer House at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The scenes too were those not often witnessed. Hand in hand stood the men, who a few years ago had fought on opposite sides in the great &cil war. Daughters of the North said kind things to the daughters of the South, and good fellowship in its highest sense prevailed.

The participants in these unfamiliar scenes were the greatest of the Hving generals and solders, who fought for the South, accompanied by their wiyes and daughters, and were welcomed by distinguished men who fought for the North and northern women. The utterances of welcome were not the formal words of pointe society lightly spoken. They came from the hearts, and the responses were no less fervent.

Mayor Swift delivered a touching welcome address, and the response of General Gordon was no less inspiring. Introductions next followed, and the parlors rang with theery words. Soldiers of the South met comrades in arms, and in the they told each other the trials and pleasures of these later years. The object of their mission was not forgotten, and tomorrow they will lay on the graves of brave Americans their courteous tributes of Southland flowers.

The Virginia and southeastern guests arrived in a special car over the Ealtimore and Ohio at 11 o'clock. They were met at the station by the reception committee and others, and at once taken in carriages to the Palmer House.

The members of the party are, General mittee and others, and at once taken in carriages to the Palmer House.

The members of the party are, General Wade Hampton and Charles E. Thomas, his private secretary; General Eppa Hunton, General Heth and daughter, Mr. Holmes Conrad and wife, of Virginia; General S. G. French, General Wade Hampton, South Carolina; General L. L. Lomax, General Marcus Wright and wife, General Greene, North Carolina; General H. K. Douglas, Maryland; Colonel Albert Akers and wife, Colonel J. P. Erwin, Washington; Colonel F. V. Robinson, Washington; Colonel F. V. Robinson, Washington; Captain H. P. Littlepage and wife, Captain Drew and wife, Washington; Major R. W. Hunter, Virginia; Misses Belle Armstrong, Eliza Washington; Laura Mitchell, Virginia Mitchell and Margaret Cox, all of Washington.

Those who, as the official committee Those who, as the official committee bade these southern guests welcome to Chicago were: Ferd. W. Peck, Robert Waller, Inneral John C. Underwood, R. L. Henry, Maleom McNeill, Gilbert C. Shaw, and F. C. L. Funkhauser. This committee was accompanied by Bishop Samuel Fallows, Adjutant-General Alfred Orendorff, C. U. Gordon, George Forrester, and Colonel R. H. Stewart.

GENERAL LONGSTREET.

General Longstreet and his two daughters, Mrs. Sanders and Miss Longstreet, were there in their carriages, and were enthusiastically greeted by all of the new arrivals. They were driven at once to the Palmer House and were soon greeting the arrivals from Atlanta.

This afternoon the visitors followed their own inclinations. Some called upon Chicago friends; others were the guests of the local committee at a matinee performance of the "Cotton King," while others were escorted over the boulevards and through the parks. They assembled at the Palmer House at 5 o'clock, where they received a formal welcome. At 5 o'clock the gentlemen of the party were driven to Kinsleys, where an elegant banquet was served, and where responses were made to toasis well befitting the occasion.

This is the only thing that has pre-vented Mayor Pettit from resigning long ago, to escape the petly persecutions of his colleagues in the Police Board.

NO VOICE IN THE BOARD. He says he has been given no voice whatever in the deliberations of the hoard, and his suggestions for reform in the city, especially along the line of suppressing houses of ill-fame, has been laughed at. He has become tired of such treatment, and will retire to the conducof his large private business. Major Humphries will undoubtedly be his successor, and lively times are looked for when this takes place.

IN MARTI STILL ALIVE? The Reported Death of the Cuban Leader

Authoritative v Denied in Bayana. KEY WEST, FLA., May 29 .- The steamship Mascotte, from Havana, to-night brings the news that Marti's death is au-thoritatively denied in that city. It is reported that Marti's life was insured for $50,000, which his wife attempted to col-lect. The insurance company demanded proof of his death from Martinez Campos, proof of his death from Martinez Campos, which was refused. La Lucha attempted to publish there facts, but it was suppressed by the government and fined. The report of Marti's death in the supplements of La Discussione and La Lucha vary. La Lucha claims the body was in a striped linen suit. La Discussione says that the body was dressed in black. A well-informed Cuban passenger by the Mascotte, to-night states that no one in Havana believed in the report of Marti's death.

The Girls Were Frightened.

A mean, bold man tried to break into the Womans' College last night and all the girs got awfully frightened, and I don't biame them, it was enough to make any girl scream. He was a lagro named Morris Goode, as the girls found out after he was caught, and he went up the fire escape and tried to crawl in at the window. He was seen from the street, however, and somebody told Dr. Nelson, and then the Doctor treed him. The girls all stood around and peeped out of the windows, and were awfully frightened, while the Doctor and some other men tied the villian. They then telegraphed to the police station and an officer came and locked him up.

The Opinion is That Lawless Has Lost the Fight Completely.

POCAHONTAS, VA., May 29.—Special.—
The situation in the Flat Top coal region indicates that the strike is partially broken, and to-day's proceedings only verify the reports of yesterday. From the operators' standpoint the outlook is brighter than it has been for several days past, and the consensus of opinion that Lawless has lost the fight, and the laborers have gained nothing, but have lost a great deal of valuable time, and many of them have lost valuable positions.

The six operations—viz., Southwest and The six operations—viz., Southwest and Browning, at Pocahontas, and Crozer, Upland, Houston, and Pulaski, on Eikhorn, have now, as combined, more than 1,000 men at work, and the indications are that their forces will be largely increased by Saturday. Crozer worked about one hundred men to-day, including three union men. Houston put on ten old men, making seventy in all, and Upland loaded six cars. This is the first coal they have succeeded in loading since the strike.

The Houston and Upland mines are run altogether by their old men, these operators prefering not to put any new men in if the old employes would return to work. A large number of old men will go to work to-merrow and more men will go to work to-morrow and more on Saturday, as many prefer to remain out till the first of the month.

STRIKERS DISCOURAGED. Many of the strikers seem discouraged, and are now ripe for a conference and an adjustment of the differences existing between the operators and themselves. Many of the strikers seem to be willing to make some concessions, provided the operators will meet them half-way. Many of them begin to realize that they have played for high stakes and lost, while others are of the opinion that they will yet be able to freeze out the operators and their scab labor.

The operators seem to be of a different opinion, and say that all the labor necessary is available to run their mines. The report that Lawless had gone to the Columbus convention was a mistake, and

A meeting was held at Powhatan to-day, which was addressed by Webb, Law-less, and others. There were shout 400 strikers present. Lawless was very abu-sive and wild in his talk. He applied some epithets to the railway officials and some epithets to the railway officials and operators that will scarcely bear repeating. Although he advised his followers to be peaceable, it was evident that he was not pleased with the torn affairs have taken in the last few days. He said he would never rest until good old Governor MacCorkle had come to the field and made a personal investigation of the abuses to which the miners were subsected.

Referring to white men in the mines, he applied such names as "mill-puddlers," "cinder-smashers," "gravel-rollers," and "corn-field sailors."

Lawless denied this to-day, and denounced the "Telegraph" in a very bitter manner, but several gentleman of unimpeachable veracity stated that he did use the identical words used in the Telegraph's report. The speech was reported to Governor MacCorkie.
